

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election goes too far.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more profit motive than public interest.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard.

Thank you for considering the public interest in your daily deliberations.
